

PRESIDENT
GEORGE W. BUSH

"I support strongly the tax-exempt status of credit unions..."

President George W. Bush

I support strongly the tax-exempt status of credit unions, and will continue to highlight the important contributions that credit unions make to our financial system. As service-oriented, member-owned financial cooperatives, credit unions should continue to invest in a safe and sound manner in America's future.

I look forward to continuing to work together to ensure a bright future for all Americans.

Sincerely,

George W. Bush

John Kerry
PRESIDENT

"...I want you to know that I will continue to support America's credit unions and oppose any efforts to change the existing tax-exempt status of credit unions."

Presidential candidate John Kerry

...I strongly believe we must do everything possible to maintain the credit union model as a key piece of the financial services system. Credit union's focus on member service means that your organization is constantly evolving to expand and enhance products and services for your members. While you continue this important work, I want you to know that I will continue to support America's credit unions and oppose any efforts to change the existing tax-exempt status of credit unions.

I look forward to working with you to address the needs and concerns of America's credit unions in the future.

Sincerely,

John F. Kerry

At Least They Agree On One Thing.

America's member-owned, volunteer-led, not-for-profit credit unions help Americans earn and save. We provide our members with a real choice in the financial marketplace, offer better rates and lower fees by returning earnings to our member-owners, deliver quality service, and help our members improve their economic well-being.
