

Why Do 86 Million Americans Love Their Credit Union?

Here's one member's reason...

As a working, single mother, trying to buy a home for my family was a difficult experience. Just making ends meet didn't let me save for a down payment. That's when my credit union stepped in to help.

My credit union helped me secure a "first time home buyer down payment" and a mortgage loan. Now my son and I have a home together for the same costs we were paying to live in an apartment.

My credit union also gives me the great financial services I want – direct deposit, debit card and my mortgage – at less expensive rates. Great services, real caring and a willingness to help me...that's why I love my credit union."
